

Climate policy after COP 26 and IPCC AR6: the role of international cooperation

First Durham Environmental and Energy Economics Workshop

Durham, June 6, 2022
(hybrid event)

Centre for Environmental and Energy Economics (CE3)
Durham University Business School (DUBS)

Durham Energy Institute (DEI)

Overview: The Workshop discusses the role of international cooperation in future climate change policy, bringing together some of the leading experts on the analysis of International Environmental Agreements, who will present their latest papers on the topic. In addition, the policy roundtable brings together experts in climate policy, law and economics, including the two coordinating lead authors of the chapter on international cooperation of the recent IPCC AR6 report on Mitigation of Climate Change.
